Beerholm Tree has leased the Haymarket Theatre to Lewis Waller, an actor, for the period of his absence on his American tour, and Mr. Waller induced such well-known artists as Maude Millet, Julia Nellson, Charles Hawree and Fanny Brough to join him in producing Mr. Wilde's play. The action takes place in London during the present day, and the play received splendid staging.

As to the plot, it must be classified as of the tawdriest character and unworthy of a playwright claiming originality. The story is told by unreal characters who excite no sympathy.
